Washington's graduation rate inches closer to 80 percent

The nation's high school graduation rate was 83 percent for the 2014-15 school year, the most recent data available. Across the Puget Sound, a number of districts posted rates higher than 92 percent for the class of 2016, including Bainbridge Island, Eatonville, Mercer Island, Steilacoom and Vashon Island.

One-Third of Washington Students DON'T Graduate from High School

The findings build on a national study by the Manhattan Institute, which examined graduation rates across all 50 states last fall and found similar results. The national graduation rate for the class of 2010 was 71 percent, but only 55 percent for African Americans
